What You Need to Know: Where to Call if You Need Non-Emergency Assistance; Sandbag Locations; And More

Redwood City – The County of San Mateo is bracing for more late-winter rain as crews continue to clear roads and remove fallen trees from the latest round of storms.

Here is what you need to know:

If you need assistance, don't have power and need a place to stay or other resources, please call 2-1-1. Operated by the United Way of the Bay Area, 2-1-1 can connect you to a specialist for personalized assistance with free, confidential information in multiple languages.

If you need sandbags, the County provides a list of locations operated both by the County and local cities. Be sure to call or check a city's website to ensure availability and to check hours.

If you come across downed power lines or a gas leak, leave the area immediately and call 9-1-1. Then, call PG&E at 1-800-743-5000. Know what to do if you see a downed power line.

If your power is out, you can check on the status at the PG&E outage map.

If you want to head to a County park, check the status before you venture out.
