

DUOLINGO GUIDE

- 1. Choose Your Language:
 - Duolingo will ask you to select the language you want to learn.
 - You can choose from a wide variety of languages, including popular ones like Spanish, French, German, or more niche languages like Swahili or Esperanto.
- 2. Set Your Learning Goals:
 - Duolingo will ask how many minutes a day you want to dedicate to learning a new language (e.g., 5, 10, 15, or 20 minutes).
 - It will then adjust your daily lessons to match this time commitment.
- 3. Answer a Few Questions About Your Language Skills:
 - You may be asked if you have prior experience with the language (for example, whether you're a beginner or have some knowledge).
 - If you're not a complete beginner, Duolingo may place you in a test to assess your current level.
- 4. Start Learning:
 - Duolingo will take you through your first lessons. These are typically interactive exercises involving translation, listening, speaking, and multiple-choice questions.
 - The app uses gamification to keep you motivated by awarding "XP" (experience points) and setting milestones. After the first lessons you will be asked to create an account. Create your account.

DUOLINGO GUIDE

Account Features: You can choose to create a free account and start learning immediately.

Duolingo Free Account Features:

Free: Duolingo's free version allows you to access most of the core features, including:

Learning as many languages as you want.

Completing daily lessons and exercises.

Tracking your progress through XP and streaks.

Access to Duolingo's learning materials and practice exercises.

Ads: Free users may encounter ads between lessons.

Hearts System: The free account operates on a "hearts" system, which limits the number of mistakes you can make in a lesson. Once you run out of hearts, you must either wait for them to refill (usually after a few hours) or practice previous lessons to earn more hearts. Try your best and don't get discouraged just keep practicing as much as possible!

If you'd like, you can sign up for a free account and start learning today!! The process is simple, and Duolingo is designed to be user-friendly for learners at any level.
